Cumming Family Chiropractic Brings Holistic, Modern Care to Community at New City Center Office

CUMMING, Ga. – A family-centered chiropractic practice that places value in helping families live well and thrive is joining the Cumming City Center family. Cumming Family Chiropractic owner and operator Dr. Diana Husk, a local Forsyth County mom, is thrilled to be bringing her specialized chiropractic care to local families at the City Center.

“We lovingly say that we aren’t your granddaddy’s chiropractic office, and what we mean by that is we work to get to the root cause of symptoms in you and your babies,” said Dr. Husk. “We’re a nervous system-focused office, meaning we work to remove interference in your nervous system, allowing for healing, overall health, vitality and alignment, so that your body can successfully move out of fight or flight mode and experience consistent regulation instead.”

Dr. Husk, a 2010 West Forsyth High School graduate, is the only pediatric-certified chiropractic within a 20-mile radius. She specializes in women’s and pediatric health disorders, with an emphasis in autism, sensory processing, and anxiety. Cumming Family Chiropractic’s two other doctors, Dr. Nicole Hirshowitz and Dr. Elissa Chambers, are knowledgeable and experienced chiropractors with various post-doctorate training in pregnancy, pediatrics, and family health.

“Most chiropractors focus on the musculoskeletal system – neck pain, back pain – but our team of doctors focuses on the nervous system – our brain, spinal cord, and spinal nerves. This is the system that controls all of our systems and everything that happens in our bodies,” Dr. Husk said.

While Cumming Family Chiropractic specializes in prenatal, pregnancy, and pediatric care, Dr. Husk stressed that ALL are welcome. “We don’t just focus on pain, we focus on FUNCTION.”

She noted that many common symptoms and conditions, such as allergies, ear infections, colic, reflux, constipation, chronic sickness, headaches and body pain, are actually signs of neurological stress, which can be treated through her practice’s holistic approach to chiropractic care.

“Stress doesn’t just magically go away. It migrates as we age,” she said. “For example, colicky babies become kids who struggle to pay attention in school and become teens with anxiety and depression, who then become adults with low back pain and headaches. It’s all a cycle.

“We’re here with open arms to serve families in Cumming and Forsyth County – our mission is a healthier, happier community. We are ready and we can’t wait to serve everyone in our new location at the Cumming City Center!”
